

Missile Expert To Visit Dallas During Meeting

Dr. Walter R. Dornberger, the world's first missile team chief, will visit Dallas this week during the Air Force Association's convention.

Now technical assistant to the president of Bell Aircraft Corporation in Buffalo, N.Y., Dornberger commanded the German V-1 and V-2 development teams during World War II. He was Wernher von Braun's boss.

Dornberger held the rank of major general when he surrendered to the Allies in 1945. He became an American citizen and is recognized as one of the world's top missile experts.
